Construction industry insights

DID YOU KNOW?

Workplace stress remains pervasive in the construction sector, with more than two-thirds of employees experiencing at least moderate stress — primarily due to heavy workloads. Burnout affects 59% of employees — particularly millennials and those working multiple jobs.

Proactively addressing burnout is critical as it's linked to severe mental health issues including anxiety, depression and post-traumatic stress. To mitigate these challenges, employees favor increased remote work options, additional paid time off and company-sponsored self-care programs.
